

Josh Hurvitz

Partner

Josh Hurvitz marries strategic insights with unrivaled access to policymakers on both sides of the Capitol to deliver measurable and meaningful results for major clients across industries and the nonprofit sector. A forceful advocate of the utmost integrity, and a pragmatic dealmaker, Josh has earned the trust of elected officials of all political stripes, which positions his clients at the center of major debates.

For nearly a decade, from 2010-2019, Josh served as Vice President for Public Policy at Time Warner Inc., and later WarnerMedia, where he earned a reputation as a leader in advocacy for the rights of intellectual property creators and an expert in the congressional and regulatory review of major corporate mergers. Most recently, he led the integration of WarnerMedia into AT&T's Washington office, with global responsibilities related to all facets of the company's entertainment assets.

He has led major advocacy campaigns related to the protection of journalists and the First Amendment and advancing commercial operations by UAS (drones). Josh worked with the White House and congressional leaders to amplify social campaigns, including Cartoon Network's award winning Stop Bullying Speak Up campaign. He has also played a key role in preparing witnesses to testify in congressional oversight hearings, including the bombshell testimony by Dr. Bennet Omalu, which shed light on the significant dangers from head injuries incurred while playing football.

In over a decade of work as a lobbyist at Time Warner and another lobbying firm prior to that, he has an established track record across multiple policy disciplines including trade, tax, antitrust, consumer protection, postal, immigration and telecommunications. He has served as a company representative to four trade associations and previously served on the Board of the Copyright Alliance and the US Chamber of Commerce's Global Innovation Policy Center. He is also a frequent lecturer at American University on the intersection between public policy and the entertainment industry.

Before entering the private sector, Josh Hurvitz served as Legislative Director to Rep. Anthony Weiner from 2005-2007, where he oversaw all legislative and policy activities and staffed the congressman on the Judiciary, Energy & Commerce, and Transportation & Infrastructure Committees. He was also a senior advisor to the 2005 New York City mayoral campaign. His other work on political campaigns include as an election protection and get out the vote volunteer for Rep. Joe Courtney (D-CT), Sen. Mark Warner (D-VA) and for President Obama.

Josh is a magna cum laude graduate of Columbia University, having earned a BA in political science in 2003. He lives in Washington DC with his wife and two children.
